OUR PULL-BACKS,

BY JOSEY JORRILRAD.

Will you tell me Mr. Editor, What's all this noisy clack? Do you want us to abandon The new and gay pull-back? Well, well, the men are hard to please, No matter how we try, They always have so much to say,

But now to us you will admit It is a sensible style, And if you will give a permit We'll adopt it for awhile. It was not many years ago That bell-hoons were the rage, But didn't we have to catch it though, From masculines who engage To do nothing but berate us,

Whate'er we chose to wear, From bustles down to timey boots, E'en ribbons in our hair? We laid aside the hoop-skirt-Then these men of little soul Said our appearance on the street Was 'like bags tied on a pole.' We then adopted short skirts,

And raise a hue and cry,

So suited to the street, And whene'er we passed a corner Heard remarks made 'bout our feet. But little cares the girls who wore A stylish number two. But girls who wore a six or more

Declared it would not do. Long dresses then were worn again To please these rabid men; Up straitway went their nose again-What should the girls do then ? Twas called a filthy fashion To trail the dirty street, By some 'twas thought quite dashing,

Because it covered feet. But now we have a neat dress, That's neither long nor short, And pray, why need it man distress -Who of us will make sport? Now will you tell the reason It looks much worse to see Our skirts tied back in proper place, Which leaves our hands so free

And it seems to us a treat To clasp one hand behind us. And clear the dirty street. No tattered garments hanging. No braid from skirts is worn, From dragging on the pavements No facing from them torn. Now pray, defend the pull-back, And say it is quite dashing, For fear we might be driven

NO MIDDLEMEN: THE IMPROVED U. S. SEWING MACHINE.

It is the Traveler's delight.

A perfect working Family Machine We claim for this machine 1st. Simplicity combined with Durability. 2d. It will not skip stitches, but is as sure as

4th. The parts are all made by machinery, works easier than any machine in the 6th. Unlike all other theap machines the needle enters nearly perpendicular, thus preventing the breaking of needles. 7th, It will work on any material, from the

the peculiar construction of the needle allowing the use of coarse silk for that purpose.
